

Valley food prices dip; meats climb

TWIN FALLS—Despite sharp increases in meat prices, overall grocery prices in Magic Valley dipped slightly in March.

The March decline of one-tenth per cent followed a sharp increase in February of five-tenths per cent.

The Times-News price survey of typical medium and large markets showed a basket of groceries costing $10 in September now costs 35 cents more—reflecting an annual rate of increase of about seven per cent during the past six months.

The March price decline was caused by 0.3 per cent dip in the price of staples, including canned and processed foods. The March staples dip followed a sharp increase in the price of staples during February, a one-month jump of 1.4 per cent.

But the big food news nationally has been skyrocketing meat prices, which has prompted governmental pressure on supermarket chains to reduce meat prices.

In Magic Valley, meat prices followed the national trend.

During the last four months of 1971, valley meat prices held nearly constant, rising only 1.5 per cent in the September-December period.

But beginning in January, meat prices jumped sharply. During the first months of 1971 meat prices rose 11.3 per cent—at an annual rate of increase of over 45 per cent.

Valley meat prices rose 1.6 per cent in January, 5.6 per cent in February and another 1.1 per cent in March.

The valley meat price index was computed from typical prices for fresh, processed and canned meat products.

During the past six months the most erratic prices, expectedly, were among produce items. Produce prices had risen sharply from their September levels, jumping 24 per cent by December.

Since the beginning of the year, however, produce prices declined, standing 13 per cent above September levels by March.

The Times-News grocery price index is developed by pricing the same list of 20 typical items each month in five medium-to large markets.

Despite the composite price dip in February, there was no clear trend among individual markets surveyed.

Three markets registered significant price declines, while two recorded significant price increases last month.

Price increases at the surveyed stores have varied markedly. The lowest, six-month increase was only 1.1 per cent, while the largest increase was over five times as great at 6.1 per cent.

One unexpected development during the past six months has been a widening gap between the prices at the most expensive and least expensive grocery stores.

For the same basket of groceries the price differential grew from 0.6 per cent six months ago to 10.4 per cent in March.

That widening price range apparently would reward the alert shopper even more now than before.

Another development of interest to shoppers is a change in the price patterns at the stores surveyed.

As some stores held back price increases while others raised prices sharply, stores that had been expensive places to shop in the past have become cheaper in comparison.

For example, the most expensive store six months ago is now third among the five surveyed.

Saigon reinforces units facing Reds

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu stripped Saigon, Hue and Da Nang of all but their garrison forces today and flew 10,000 government troops to Quang Tri Province to try to stem a North Vietnamese offensive that has rolled on unchecked for four days.

The U.S. Command warned Hanoi it was taking "precautionary actions" to protect American lives in northern South Vietnam and called in two more aircraft carriers and a guided missile cruiser to back up the warning. Such warnings in the past have been followed by heavy air strikes against North Vietnam.

Hanoi Radio reported that North Vietnamese anti-aircraft gunners had shot down a B-52 bombing "populated areas" just north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). The U.S. command in Saigon denied the report.

The Communists now hold the northern half of Quang Tri province just below the DMZ, and front dispatches said Quang Tri city, the nearby Quang Tri base and Dong Ha were under heavy attack tonight. Quang Tri is 15 miles south of the DMZ, Dong Ha about 10 miles.

A new threat appeared to be developing to Hue, the ancient, imperial capital of Vietnam, but officials said the situation was under control. Communist attacks were reported at Fire Base Anne, 18 miles west of Hue, and Bastogne, 15 miles to the southwest. Both bases protect against Communist infiltration routes through the A Shau Valley to Hue, devastated in the 1968 Tet Offensive.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the reinforcements flown in today would mount a counter-offensive "in a few days." They included Marines and Rangers from Saigon, infantry from Hue and two tank brigades from Da Nang.

They were flown north in a collection of U.S. cargo C-130s, Vietnamese air force transports and airliners commandeered from the government airline. The action followed President Thieu's flight to Hue and Da Nang in a commandeered Air Vietnam jet to look over the situation.

Rain clouds have masked the invading North Vietnamese tank columns driving across the DMZ but the weather improved today and U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers struck back at the Red offensive. B-52s dropped bombs through the clouds earlier and three U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers off the coast pounded the enemy troops and tanks.

The Communists threw up intense anti-aircraft fire, and seven American planes and helicopters were reported shot down Sunday and today but American planes flew 128 strikes Sunday and more today.

U.S. 7th Fleet warships offshore poured naval gunfire into the North Vietnamese armor.

The Communist offensive overran a 10-mile stretch of South Vietnam's northernmost province of Quang Tri in five days of intensive warfare and military sources said a threat was developing to Thua Thien Province just to the south and the capital of Hue, devastated in the 1968 Tet offensive.

The specific threat to Hue was a full-scale attack on South Vietnamese artillery base Anne, 20 miles west of the city. Anne is one of a series of firebases blocking the entrances to the A Shau Valley through which the Communists poured troops and armor for the Tet offensive against Hue.

Boycott threat 'serious'

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said today the threatened nationwide boycott of Idaho potatoes was "serious" but said it was "quite a long way from a boycott."

Andrus told a news conference he talked Sunday with representatives of the United Farm Workers Organization about the Idaho Agricultural Labor Act. The nationwide boycott was threatened by UFW spokesmen the day the governor signed the act.

But the governor said the boycotts and discussions were "after the fact" since he had signed the bill, adding "I just hope we'll get through the crop season with everything under control and this legislation will enable us to do so."

Buhl man wins post

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Monday he had appointed Robert Hay, 35, to be Idaho's commissioner of insurance effective April 18.

Hay, a native of Buhl, will succeed John R. Blaine, who has resigned to enter private business.

Andrus said Hay was a "well qualified young man" who presently is insurance examiner for the State Insurance Department.

As insurance examiner, Hay is responsible for all examinations of domestic insurers, brokers, agents, business and automobile clubs.

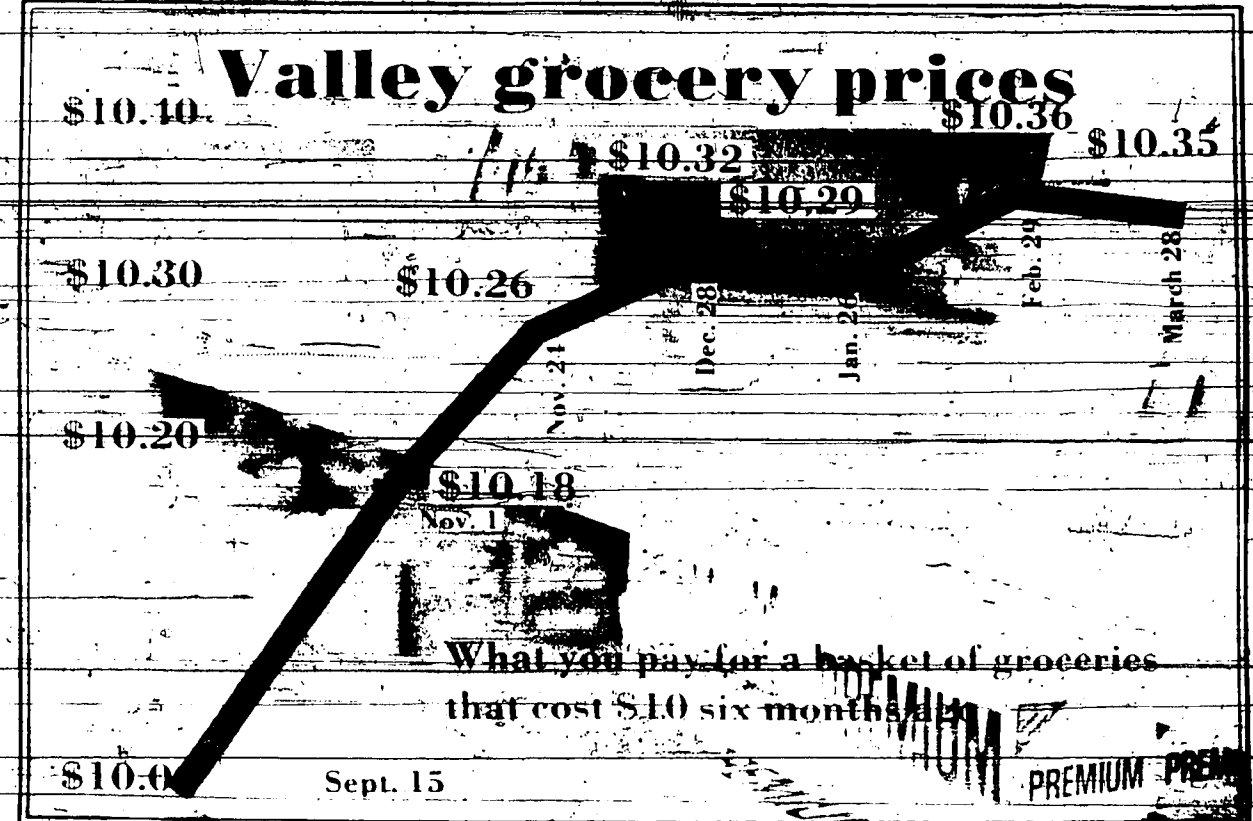

Hagerman pair hurt in wreck

HAGERMAN—Two Hagerman teen-agers were seriously injured early today in a one-car accident on Highway 30 north of Hagerman.

Jeff Smith, 18, and Debbie Gould, 15, were both listed in serious condition this morning at St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise. They were transferred there from Gooding Memorial Hospital.

They were injured when they were thrown out of a car driven by Rick Hinton, of Tumble, who lost control of the vehicle while crossing the Malad River about 2:15 a.m. today.

Hinton's car swerved into the bridge railing, throwing Smith out, then hit the other side of the bridge, tossing out Miss Gould. Hinton was also injured and was listed in good condition at the Gooding hospital. Another passenger, Debbie Stedman, 19, also of Hagerman, was treated and released, according to Gooding County sheriff's deputies.

Dollar's value cut by Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon signed legislation Monday to provide the first formal devaluation of the dollar since 1934.

In signing a bill increasing the official price of gold from $35 to $38 an ounce, Nixon said the move was "a significant step forward in our overall effort for a stronger and more competitive U.S. economy."

The U.S. action was required under a currency realignment agreement reached by non-Communist nations last Dec. 18 in Washington. It is commonly known as the Smithsonian agreement, having been negotiated at a meeting at the Smithsonian Institution.

Paul A. Volcker, Treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs, told newsmen at the White House the formal gold price increase would produce few new results because international money markets have been operating on the devalued dollar since the Smithsonian accord.

Jury asks judge to clarify laws

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—The Harrisburg Seven jury, deadlocked in their fifth day of deliberation on the key issue of conspiracy against the government, asked the judge today for a rereading of his entire charge to them on the law.

Federal Judge R. Dixon Herman called in the nine women and three men and told them he was not inclined to read the entire charge but if they would pick out portions that bothered them he would read those sections and then try to clarify them with oral explanation.

Harold C. Sheets, the jury foreman, agreed that this was feasible and also agreed to the judge's section that the jury might pick out parts of the 14-day testimony of Boyd F. Douglas Jr., the star government witness, to be reread.

One of the obstacles the jury has encountered from the start of deliberations is the murky language of the conspiracy law. Judge Herman instructed the jury it must find one overall conspiracy against the government by two or more conspirators, but also said only one of six crimes charged need be involved in finding a conspiracy existed.

The conspiracy against the government were charges that the seven plotted to kidnap Henry A. Kissinger and bomb Washington heating tunnels.

The jury was called into open court at 10:45 a.m. after having deliberated since 9 a.m. It took the judge only five minutes to agree with them about their request and they retired to deliberations again.

After the jury had left, defense attorneys objected "strenuously" to a marshal being an emissary of the judge to the jury with any kind of notification.

"I want every instruction to the jury to be given by your honor personally," said Defense Attorney Leonard Boudin.

Judge Herman overruled the objection.

Federal Judge R. Dixon Herman told the jury Sunday

P. BERRIGAN one verdict that he knew they had "tried long and hard" to arrive at a unanimous decision and asked them to try again to reach a verdict.

They had deliberated 33 1/2 hours in four days before finding the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan guilty on one perjury issue—sending a letter out of Lewisburg Penitentiary to Sister Elizabeth McAlister, a defendant, in violation of regulations.

McGovern makes 'an honest error'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — A perhaps costly mistake by Sen. George S. McGovern added to the confusion and uncertainty today about the outcome of Wisconsin's presidential primary in which McGovern, Hubert H. Humphrey, and Edmund S. Muskie battled for first place.

In a nationwide telecast Sunday, with the primary two days away, McGovern charged that the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) records showed that International Telephone and Telegraph, Inc. (ITT) deducted a $400,000 contribution to the Republican national convention from its taxable income.

As soon as the program (Face the Nation-CBS) ended, a distraught aide rushed to McGovern to tell him he was wrong and that the 1971 report with the SEC the year in which the contribution was made had not been filed.

McGovern then said that his accusation was made on the basis of statements by ITT officials that they considered it a proper business expense. He told reporters that he had made an honest error.

McGovern, Humphrey and Muskie are considered the three leading candidates in the Wisconsin primary with its rich harvest of 67 delegates to the Democratic National Convention. About 1.5 million voters are expected to turn out Tuesday for the fourth primary of the 1972 election year.

The three major contenders are believed to be bunched so closely that McGovern's invalid accusations could become a factor, even though none of the other candidates jumped in to exploit them.

Campaign strategists for the candidates have shied away from tabbing the finish, citing the uncertainty of the vote for Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace and the possibility of a mass crossover by Republicans.

GOP voters have President Nixon on the ballot along with only Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, who has pulled out for lack of funds, and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, who has not campaigned in Wisconsin.

Also on the Democrat ballot and campaigning hard are New York Mayor John V. Lindsay and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

Basque leftists invade church

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — Six left-wing Basque separatists, all armed with submachineguns, invaded a small church near Bilbao and delivered a speech from the altar about their movement, the official Spanish news agency CIPRA reported today.

The incident happened Sunday morning and climaxed a weekend of violence in the Basque provinces of northwestern Spain.

The separatists, assumed to be members of the outlawed "Basque Homeland and Liberty" (ETA) movement which seeks independence for the area, entered the church in the small town of Galdacano during mass.

While five men covered the congregation with their weapons, the sixth went to the altar and gave a short talk about ETA. Then the six fled.

It was the eighth incident in the Basque provinces in three days. Most of the attacks were Sunday, the day which nationalists consider independence day.

Also Sunday, two policemen were wounded while trying to stop an attack on the transmitter of the "Voice of Spain" radio and television transmitter on Mount Ulia near San Sebastian.

Police said they found six packages of explosives near the transmitter after the men had been driven off.

It's real war!

By STEWART KELLERMAN
PHU BAI, Vietnam (UPI)—It was war, real war; no matter what anyone said. And Americans were in the thick of it.

Capt. Michael L. Roseberry, 26, of San Antonio, Tex., was at the Phu Bai airfield Sunday when the Mayday (distress) call came in.

"We got word that six Americans were down in a plane below the DMZ (Demilitarized Zone)," Roseberry said. "We scrambled two snakes (Cobra helicopter gunships) and two sticks (Huey utility choppers). It was late afternoon, getting pretty late."

Pilot Roseberry and his gunner, WO Charles Gorski, 22, of Jamestown, N.Y., jumped into their Cobra and took off.

"We headed up north below the DMZ," Roseberry said. "When we got below the DMZ, we headed west to look for the downed plane."

Suddenly, the ground opened fire on one of the Hueys, well sign Blue Ghost 39.

They were firing from all over the place," Roseberry said. "Guns were going off everywhere."

He said the Huey looked like it ran out of power.

"It started floating down and there was a lot of smoke coming from the engine area. Then it disappeared behind a line of bamboo below."

Roseberry's Cobra—Blue Ghost—fired rockets all around the Huey as the chopper sank to the ground in hopes of knocking out as many Communist guns as possible.

"Then they started hitting me," he said. "I was taking hits on both sides, the front and the back. One bullet ripped through the cockpit and a piece of plexiglass hit me in the neck. For a minute, I thought I was shot."

Roseberry started losing control of the chopper and had to roll to the right and dive to gain more speed.

"I called on the radio, '39 was down and 38 was hit and we were heading to the sea.'"

The Cobra made it to the South China Sea and headed down the coast back to Phu Bai, 30 miles below the DMZ. The controls started freezing up after a few miles, and he had to set the chopper down on a barren swamp.

"It was a pretty good landing, considering everything," Roseberry said. "We didn't roll over or anything."

An Air Force Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter picked up Roseberry and Gorski a few minutes later and flew them to Phu Bai. They were uninjured.

The four crewmen of the downed Huey weren't so lucky. Choppers had to call off a search for them at nightfall and the men were listed as missing.

Rescue helicopters, however, managed to pick up one of the

Rifles taken from pickup

TWIN FALLS — Dr. William Kendall told Twin Falls City police some one broke into his parked pickup truck and took three 22 calibre rifles.

Officers said entry was gained sometime before 12 a.m. Sunday by breaking out a small window in the pickup truck. Dr. Kendall said the three guns were valued at about $200. All were on a gun rack in the cab of the pickup truck.

The vehicle was parked near the Military Inn when broken into.

Buhl man injured

TWIN FALLS — One person suffered minor injuries and two vehicles were damaged about midnight Saturday in an accident on Kimberly Road.

City police reported a 1951 pickup truck owned by Eusebio Salazar, Twin Falls Labor Camp, was derelict when it was struck by an east bound 1968 pickup truck driven by Cornell H. Lehman, 48; Buhl.

Officers said the Salazar vehicle was parked in front of the Cozy Club. It was believed Lehman fell asleep and collided with the parked vehicle at the edge of the outside lane. Lehman was treated for cuts and bruises.

King Hussein airs plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan has indicated that to end the Middle East dispute he may be willing to agree to a realignment of the Israeli-Jordan border provided Jerusalem becomes an open city.

"We are talking of total peace, of a solution that will be accepted not only by us but more important, by the generations that are to come," Hussein said Sunday.

Hussein discussed his plan for reuniting the Israeli-occupied west bank with Jordan in a television interview on NBC's Meet the Press.

"I do not believe that Arab strength is a match to the Israelis at this time, and beyond that I do not believe that war is a solution to the problem," Hussein said.

One of the keys to the king's plan was to remove Jerusalem from Israeli control to make it serve both Israel and the Arabs under joint control.

Jerusalem is religiously significant to the Jewish and Moslem faiths.

Hussein's remarks on peace followed Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's call for a war to regain territory lost to Israel in the 1967 conflict.

Accident victim's condition good the junction of U. S. Highways 93 and 30.

Louise Konecny, Buhl, had been hospitalized but was released over the weekend.

Treated at the time of the accident and released were Patricia Burke, Michael Burke and Laurie Burke, all Eugene, Ore., and Carla Harris, Pocatello.

WASHINGTON — Just as all red-blooded American males feared, there is a catch to that Equal Rights Amendment passed by Congress and now in the trembling hands of the state legislatures. It has to do with the social penalty for producing a baby out of wedlock. A comely but strong-willed female last week asked then added, "Everybody knows it's the man's fault, the amendment guarantees the male will be required by law to share the onus for such im-

Producing illegitimate children no longer is considered "de trop" in most fashionable circles, and there is even talk of striking a medal for the boy-girl combination that tops the field in this department. Nevertheless, the thought is one to freeze the average male's marrow, because the lady was saying it was time the father was forced to take immediate custody of the child.

I am not sure this could be accomplished except over the male's dead body. In this ungallant age, most men are willing — if not eager — to take an egalitarian view toward lunch-buys, diamond-giving, real paying and door-opening. The idea has the merit of frugality; it leaves the male with a few bucks in his jeans to fancy Riva Ridge in the Kentucky Derby. But I have never encountered a member of the formerly stronger sex who is temperamentally suited for the role of the unmarried father who is driven into the stormy night with his unwanted child.

If there is one job women do better than men it is caring for kids. It is not only that they are basically stronger; it is that they have an instinct for formulas and changing diapers. Send a man and a yowling infant into the cruel world and they would both become unkempt public charges.

Assuredly, the amendment (frantically by the states) will do many things. But it will not change the fact of life that a man is a fit companion for children only at circuses, ball games, leisurely strolls in the park and the wolfing of hamburgers at some ptoimaine center placed off-limits by the mother. Married or not, men remain congenial bachelors; they coddle the two-month old only when the mother is within arm's distance to take over in the inevitable emergency.

There is also that provision of the amendment which abolishes women's exemption from the military draft. Advocates of the amendment have spent years of precious time assuring Congress that women are quite ready to accept this responsibility.

That's what THEY think. None has ever encountered a hungry sergeant on a cold, damp, 7 a.m. drill field. Except perhaps during exposure to some square summer camp, girls have never been forced to make their beds immediately upon arising — not just make them, but tighten their components into a surface roughly approximating that of the latest freeway.

Females are accustomed to talking when the spirit moves them, which is often. Soldiers speak only when spoken to or when no superior is present. Worse, no barracks cot comes equipped with private telephone, and even the few pay jobs scattered about the base may be used at shockingly infrequent intervals, usually when all the conscript desires is about 14 hours in the sack.

Moreover, women are even more like men than men are, in that they take the dimmest view of discipline. Any married man can testify that the only way to get a wife to do something sensible is to cunningly arrange things so she believes it is her idea. From sergeants on up, military bosses employ something called a command.

Finally, there is the argument of some females that serving in the armed forces would throw them in with hordes of males, and thus serve the cause of romance. Not ruddy likely. In the first place, the girl likely to enjoy barracks life is apt to wear a face resembling the south side of a hedgehog. And when the GI seeks such after-hours recreation as flipping at a female ear or holding a girl's hand, he seeks not the comrade who finished seven lengths ahead of the field in the daily boot-polishing contest.

COMMENT

The Problem

Christian Science Monitor

The storm over the alleged political dealings of ITT (the International Telephone Telegraph Corporation) has now spread far beyond the question as to whether lobbyist Dita Beard did or did not write the interoffice memo whose disclosure by columnist Jack Anderson started it all. And White House hopes that the whole thing would fade away and be forgotten by election time next November look like wishful thinking.

Those who saw pictures of Mrs. Beard on television Sunday must question whether it was right or wise for the Senate Judiciary Committee to push its investigation to the point of interrogating a sick woman in hospital. Mercifully, in view of what happened at the end of two and a half hours of questioning, the senators have decided to call off further interrogation of the lobbyist for the time being.

So, by force of circumstance, the spotlight must be withdrawn from Mrs. Beard. The Senate Judiciary Committee is thus left without any reliable factual evidence to support the charges that three anti-trust cases against ITT were settled out of court in return for a commitment by the company to pay a big financial contribution to the 1972 Republican National Convention at San Diego. Also left hanging in the air is the confirmation as Attorney General of Richard Kleindienst, accused of involvement in the anti-trust settlement.

But the spotlight remains focused more than ever on ITT and beyond that on the power wielded by the big industrial conglomerates and on their relations with government.

As a result of the latest Anderson disclosures accusing ITT of trying to prevent the election in 1970 of leftist Salvador Allende to be president of Chile (where ITT owns a huge telephone company), the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had decided to open a second investigation, this time centering on the influence of the multinational corporations on American foreign policy.

Already the Anderson revelations have caused a new outburst of anti-American feeling in Chile, showing how damaging such charges may be to the United States image abroad. Certainly there are those who will question the wisdom of the Anderson methods.

In all fairness it must be said that the more enlightened multinational companies today are making dedicated efforts to conduct their overseas operations with understanding of the social and human problems of the developing countries they are dealing with. But the danger is that these huge concerns may be tempted to exert pressures on foreign governments that are contrary to the United States' best interests. Up till now these giants seem to have escaped from effective political control.

In the long run, we believe, it will be healthy to have the whole problem of the conglomerate and the multinational corporation aired before Congress.

The Two Months

WASHINGTON — My friend Metterling has just returned from a three-month visit to the green hell of Brazil. He called me as soon as he got back and said, "I hope you saved me. Life magazine — I want to watch up on the Howard Hughes autobiography."

"I don't know how to tell you this, Metterling," I said, "but the Hughes autobiography is a forgery."

"Oh, what a pity! I was so looking forward to reading it once I got out of the jungle. What else is new?"

"Not too much. Jack Anderson printed a memo from an ITT lobbyist saying the company gave a $400,000 commitment to the Republicans."

"Fancy that. What did the Republicans have to say?"

"They said the memo was a forgery."

"Now, wait a minute. Do you mean to say that BOTH the Howard Hughes book and the Jack Anderson memo were forgeries?"

"It's hard to believe," I admitted.

"But why would ITT want to forge Howard Hughes' autobiography?"

"They didn't forge Howard Hughes' autobiography. The Clifford Irving's forged that."

"Then what did ITT forge?"

"ITT didn't forge anything. They said the memo purportedly written by Dita Beard was a forgery."

"Dita Beard?"

"Yes, you see she worked for ITT and her name was on a memo saying she had the White House in the bag for a $400,000 contribution to the Republican National Convention."

"What did Howard Hughes have to say to that?"

"Howard Hughes had nothing to say to that. He did loan $250,000 to Richard Nixon's brother, to bail him out of a restaurant business in Whittier, Calif. years ago, but that was in the Irving book which was a forgery. Irving apparently got it from Noah Distreth's book about Hughes, which happens to be true."

"I see," Metterling said. "Well, where does that leave Life magazine?"

"Life magazine revealed last week that the Justice Department allegedly intervened on behalf of two friends of President Nixon's in a campaign donation case in San Diego."

"Was this at ITT's behest?"

Metterling asked. "No, dammit," I said, trying to keep my temper. "ITT had nothing to do with that. ITT's only involvement with San Diego was the offer they made to finance the Republican convention. Other than that, ITT is blameless, except that there seems to be some story that they ganged up with the Central Intelligence Agency in Chile to defeat President Allende."

"I thought it was Nicaragua."

"No, Howard Hughes went to Nicaragua."

"Why would Howard Hughes go to Nicaragua if ITT was having trouble in Chile?"

"Because Hughes doesn't care what happens to Chile. You see, Hughes was forced out of the Bahamas after he blew the whistle on the Irvings and so he went to Nicaragua. But now he's in Vancouver."

"Well, who's in San Diego?"

"Nobody but the men. Life magazine said the Justice Department covered up for."

"I see," Metterling said. "Why didn't the Republicans get the $400,000 to finance their convention in San Diego from Howard Hughes?"

On Welfare

Some of our country's critics argue that we spend too much money on weapons and technology and not enough on solving our nation's social problems.

For the record, last year, out of every dollar which your government spent, 51 cents went to "social welfare."

Recent remedial legislation has left the impression that something is being done about it — that welfare abuses are being corrected.

But welfare costs jumped another 27 per cent last year and they're still climbing.

What more must we do?

When President Nixon asked the Congress for a major overhaul of the welfare program, they gave him a minor tuneup instead.

Maybe it's best he did not get all he asked; that package had become so cotton-pickin' complicated even its authors couldn't understand it.

Anyway, Congress did agree to a requirement that able-bodied welfare recipients — including mothers — should make themselves available for work or work training.

Starting July 1, that will tend to plug one large leak in our fiscal plumbing. There are presently more than 2½ million parents receiving ADC.

This aid to dependent children is at once our nation's most compassionate — and most abused — aid effort.

As President Nixon says, "keep families together," but this is a start at alleviating a sometimes scandalous subsidy for illegitimacy.

Now the President is asking Congress for more than $500 million to help individual states meet soaring welfare costs. Understandably, they are the "big-city states." Eight states will get more than 70 per cent of the total.

Understand, the 51.2 per cent of all government expenditures this fiscal year under the heading of "welfare" was not all relief money to poor people. That astronomical $170.7 billion headed "social welfare" included 55.5 billion aid to education.

Your Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you comment on vertigo? My niece has asked me. She has not given me any information other than that she falls and that she is on medication. — Mrs. F. C.

Vertigo is a loss of balance, but it is not easy to offer any simple "comment" because there are different causes and, of course, different treatments. These are described and discussed in my booklet, "Dizzy Spells," and my best suggestion is that you get it and read it. Send 25 cents and a long self-addressed stamped envelope for a copy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The doctor told my husband he has high blood pressure and cirrhosis of the liver and he should stop drinking. He was consuming sometimes a quart of whisky a day.

He stopped for four months and his health improved. Now he has started again on drinks 12 to 18 bottles of beer every night. He thinks it won't hurt him. How much can his damaged liver tolerate? — Mrs. A. H. F.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been trying for two years to get pregnant. My doctor tells me I am normal and there's no reason why I shouldn't get pregnant. He said I'm doing everything right except taking vitamins, so what are good ones? — Mrs. L. P. J.

Vitamins won't help. But are you overweight? Has your thyroid been checked? They can be factors. Gynecologists can induce ovulation, if that is your trouble, with medications.

You haven't mentioned your husband being examined, but he should be, because the trouble, at least a third of the time, is with the husband and not the wife.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 72. Could intercourse about once a month cause prostate trouble? — F. S. R.

No.

When the population of the United States becomes stabilized, if ever, there will be relatively more old folks and relatively fewer young people. The median age will rise from the present 28 to 37. So says the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future.

A stabilized population is one in which the average family has only two children. This is known as zero growth. In 60 to 70 years of zero growth, the U.S. population would become stationary at about 300 million.

The number of adults in the working force, including women, also would be proportionately greater, and per capita incomes higher. That is a happy prospect, else who would pay for the older people's Social Security and Medicare.

A stabilized population might result in an end to growth in production of manufactured goods, but the demand for services would rise. This demand would be in education, as well as in health and other services, because the fewer children would go to school longer, maybe even until age 30.

Unfortunately few of the present older generation will live long enough to enjoy this improved standing vis-a-vis youth. The young of today then will be old. Today's youth apparently will have it mostly their own way all the way through old age.

Lindbergh rescued from rain forest

By FERNANDO DEL MUNDO
MANILA (UPI)—Charles A. Lindbergh was rescued from a remote rain forest in the southern Philippines Sunday where he joined an expedition to observe the world's only living cave-dwellers. He returned to Manila today.

Lindbergh, the aviator, was with a party of 46, including two American newsmen, rescued by a U.S. Air Force helicopter in Cotabato Province, 580 miles southeast of Manila, it is home for the cave-dwelling Tasaday "lost tribe."

The expedition had been in the area since March 23, observing the life-style of the cave dwellers, when its helicopter broke down Friday and its supplies started to run low.

The leader of the expedition, Filipino millionaire philanthropist Manuel Elizalde Jr.,

radioed for assistance and the U.S. Embassy in Manila alerted the Air Force.

Lindbergh flew into the U.S. Clark air base, 50 miles north of Manila, Sunday night and then left for Manila. A spokesman for the Panamin

Foundation, a government-supported group which looks after Philippine cultural minorities and which sponsored the expedition, said Lindbergh was expected to fly back this week to the United States to attend to "important commitments."

SDS to attempt campus comeback

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), the radical organization which has lost much of its appeal on college campuses in the past two years, will attempt to rejuvenate itself this spring with a campaign against "racist teaching and racist textbooks."

The planning and strategy of this campaign was the focal point of the SDS national convention which attracted some 1,000 young persons to the Harvard University campus from Thursday through Sunday.

At two lengthy meetings of Saturday and Sunday, SDS passed dozens of resolutions to "fight racism" in all spheres of American society, but most of the attention and controversy at the convention surrounded SDS's plans to halt the teaching of so-called "racist theories" on college campuses across the country.

"The convention marks the beginning of a nationwide drive to get racist textbooks out of the classroom," said Jeffrey Maversole, president of the Harvard-Radcliffe SDS which hosted the convention.

Primary SDS targets are the works of Profs. William Shockley of Stanford, Richard Herrnstein of Harvard and Arthur Jensen of the University of California at Berkeley—all of whom have argued that blacks are genetically inferior to whites.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—The state today calls its most dramatic witness in the Angela Davis trial—the prosecutor who battled with his abductors in a yellow getaway van outside the San Rafael courthouse.

Gary Thomas, a deputy district attorney, was wounded in the spine and permanently paralyzed in the August 1970 shooting in which he, Judge Harold Haley and three women jurors were taken hostage.

Judge Haley's head was half-blown off and three of their captors, including Jonathan Jackson, 17, were killed as they tried to drive from the Marin County Civic Center.

With the kidnap-murder trial entering its second week of evidence, prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. was expected to try to establish through testimony by Thomas that young Jackson and the other would-be escapers demanded the freeing of the vehicle and grabbed a revolver three women jurors had told them "Jackson," brother of

Aspin asks for report

By GENE BERNHARDT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., today asked a federal court to order the Pentagon to turn over to him its confidential investigative report on the My Lai massacre.

Aspin, a former analyst in the Defense Department, invoked the Freedom of Information Act in his suit. The law requires access by the public to government documents except those exempted for security reasons.

Aspin demanded release of the "Peers Commission Report" on the slayings of Vietnamese civilians by U.S. troops at My Lai, and asked the court to order Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke to comply. He claimed the report was not protected by exemptions in the Freedom of Information law.

In a letter to Laird Feb. 18, Aspin said the Army's claim that the report might affect pending prosecution of individuals named in the report no longer was valid since all trials were completed and only an appeal—that of Lt. William L. Calley—was pending.

Military sources in Washington have said the Air Force would try to prove that Perkins intended to pass secret material to a Soviet embassy attaché in Mexico City.

Research project

Research study conducted by Jerome fourth graders

By CHARLOTTE BELL, Times-News writer

JEROME — A fourth grade class in Jerome is participating in a continent-wide study of the migration of the Monarch butterfly.

Pupils in the class of Mrs. Estes Rowland have supplies of tags and reports for sending the information to the University of Toronto, Canada.

"We are presently submitting a report on the sighting of several Monarch butterflies this year by members of the class," she said. In addition, class members plan to catch and tag butterflies if they can, and several pupils have found cocoons which are being held for hatching.

Mrs. Rowland's class became affiliated with the study after a pupil, Bob Nutsch, brought the cocoon of a Monarch to class. After the pupils watched it develop into an adult butterfly, they became interested in a book about those particular butterflies.

From the book, they learned of the research of Dr. Fred Urquhart of the University of Toronto, a specialist in Monarch butterflies. They wrote to him, asking for information. The research organization replied, asking if the class would like to tag butterflies, record sightings, and send the information to Toronto.

The class agreed to join the research. Mrs. Rowland said attempts are being made to interest other fourth grade classes in the project, which will continue as long as the pupils remain interested.

Tags are placed on the right front wing after all scales are rubbed off a small patch. Each tag has a number, which is recorded. The species tagged, location of the town, date, and time zone are also recorded, and the information is sent to Toronto.

Also noted is the sex of the butterfly, and whether it was caught in the wild or was raised by the class.

Mrs. Rowland said Monarchs are found in almost all the United States. It migrates across North America much as do birds, flying south in the autumn and north in the spring, following certain corridors and traveling in large flocks.

Monarch larvae or caterpillars may be found most often in fields where milkweeds grow. They may be placed in screen cages or other suitable containers — jars, boxes or milk cartons — while they grow into adult butterflies.

Cages should be kept in moist places, and not exposed to direct sunlight, she said.

Home sewing said creative form of self-expression

SHOSHONE — Home sewing is a creative form of self-expression as well as an economic advantage for more and more women, says Mrs. Jean Annett.

Mrs. Annett is home economist for Lincoln County. She points to the substantial savings and the "easier" than ever to use "sewing machines of today."

Fabrics, materials, patterns and trimmings come in many varieties, allowing the home sewer to ship up everything from lingerie to rainwear.

Manufacturers are keeping pace with the home sewer's desire for style, color and individuality by providing a range of fabrics that include stretch materials, knits, bonded, fake furs, suede, vinyl and polyurethane. A big bonus of many of the new fabrics is that they are washable.

She warns the seamstress to choose lining and material that go together and as "why sew a permanent press garment if the trim or lining has to be ironed?" or what is to be done if a zipper shrinks more than the fabric and results in puckering and pulling after the first laundering?"

She suggests pre-shrinking a zipper if there is any question about it, test trim for colorfastness before combining it with a white or light material, launder any material that may shrink before cutting the pattern if there is any doubt whether it has been pre-shrunk.

Gooding display featured

GOODING — The Gooding County Historical Society has only been in existence since January, however, it has accomplished much in preserving the history of Gooding.

On display in the Gooding County Courthouse are some early Gooding pictures and documents, and according to Mildred Bryan, in charge of the display case, every month the displays will be changed to acquaint visitors with the early days.

Gooding was incorporated as a city in 1910 but was originally called Toponis and chartered as a village a few years previous.

A tape recorder has been purchased and interview committees, under the supervision of Alberta Butler, are visiting old-time residents to get their stories of early life in Gooding. Bob Meyer, vice president of the society, is interviewing pioneer families for a history of the lodges here.

According to Jean Stone, secretary-treasurer, the society's principal concern is finding a permanent place in Gooding County to safely display and store the antiques and documents. Under consideration by the Idaho Parks Board is a proposal to locate the museum on the site of the proposed Malad River Gorge State Park.

In addition to presenting a radio play and barbershop quartet concert, the society has plans for a barbecue and old-time fiddler's ball. These programs are some of the many activities planned by the group to raise funds and interest people in the society.

The society began as a project for the cultural arts committee of the Extension Homemakers Council, under the direction of Dorothy Griever, extension home agent.

The idea was to provide for the preservation and history of the community.

TWIN FALLS Music Club members and Twin Falls merchants are asking businesses and organizations to enter floats in a parade May 13 in honor of National Music Club week. Volco Builders in Twin Falls is one business already entered and here Mrs. Richard Reed, parade chairman, and Mrs. Clayb Christensen, co-chairman, give float making pointers to Russ Backus of Volco, from right.

One medium apple weighs about 1 1/2 pounds, measures about two inches by two and one-half inches and has only 70 calories, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

When you order rolls for a home wedding reception, estimate 1 1/2 standard size ones per person or two to three tiny ones.

Frozen foods should be cooked and used after thawing, because harmful bacteria develop rapidly at room temperature.

When shopping for an orchestra for the wedding reception, seek references and select a group that's established.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about women using the title "Ms." in order to keep their marital status confidential? All men are called "Mr." which gives no one a clue as to whether they are married or single, which in some cases could be to their advantage. Don't you think women should demand equal privacy in their marital status? MS. SCHWARTZ

DEAR MS. SCHWARTZ: If it's equality women want, instead of adopting "Ms." to conceal their marital status, they should insist that all men be identified according to THEIR marital status. After all, a woman has a right to know whether a man is a bachelor, married, divorced, a widower, or just swinging.

Example: Joe Blow, M. M. (Married Man); Moe Schmo, B.R. (Bachelor); WR, for widower; AV for available, or T. O. L. for Temporarily on the Loose. Girls?

DEAR ABBY: He. That 25-year-old school teacher who wants to scream because she's often mistaken for a teenager. She will enjoy it when she can adopt an attitude more mature than her looks.

I was nicknamed Babyface in the 7th grade and I hated it. In college I was frequently asked what I wanted to be when I grew up. Now I am 32, and married to a physician, and am still asked if my "father" is home when a patient comes to the door to see my husband. (I simply smile and call "the doctor.")

My husband was asked by a waiter recently if his "daughter" was old enough to have a cocktail. And that was in an area where 18 was the legal age! What fun! We both have lots of laughs when things like this occur. It doesn't happen quite so often now, but when it does, it really makes my day. BABYFACE

DEAR BABYFACE: As time goes on, you'll find it happening less, and you'll be enjoying it more.

DEAR ABBY: "Peaved Typist" complained to you because her boss brought in his kids' essays and term papers to type, also his wife's speeches and reports for her club. You said, "You're being paid to type, so what difference does it make what you type as long as you have the time" or words to that effect.

Whoops! You missed the point, Abby. If that boss owns his own business, that's one thing. But if he is just one of the employees of the company, then he is asking the typist to do nonproductive work on company time. And ask anyone in personnel what that does to the overhead.

I am a typist in one of the largest firms in the world, and we have a print shop here where some executives have their specially designed Christmas cards made, plus Little League flyers, party announcements, etc. And we are supposed to be cutting down on our overhead!

No name, please. I am typing this on company time, so I'm guilty, too. Sign me.

"POT-CALLING KETTLE BLACK"

DEAR POT: Many others wrote to point this out. And you are right, of course. But read on, for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: That "Peaved Typist" sounds like an old sourpuss to me. I wish my boss would bring me his kids' term papers to type, or even his wife's club reports. The routine work here is dull, dull, dull! I'd welcome anything to break the monotony.

Some people don't know when they're well off. I am a typist. Sign me.

TEEN'S NATURAL NUTRIENTS

By Mary Sue Miller

The dietary habits of too many teen girls fail to make a passing grade. In spite of all the teen-talk about natural foods, the consumption of natural — vitamin C, calcium and iron — falls short of adequate. And those nutrients, plus protein are essential to a strong body, sound teeth, physical stamina, stable nerves and good skin and hair. Not to mention normal weight!

Deficiencies are mainly of Miss Teen's own making. She eats gooey snacks and puts on weight. Then, still snacking, she skips on meats and vegetables. Or she is so finicky that she eats scarcely anything, she fades away to skin and bones. Either way, her intake is never properly balanced. Her weight, nerve and looks suffer grievously.

Let's reorder the daily pattern of eating. For calcium, protein and riboflavin (B-vitamin): 4 cups of vitamin D skim milk; (vitamin-D is necessary to ingestion of riboflavin). For iron, protein and B-complex: 3 servings chicken, lean meat, fish or eggs. Example, 2 eggs at breakfast, hamburger patty at lunch, broiled liver at dinner.

For vitamins C and A: 1 orange or half grapefruit; 1 cup tomato juice; large portions dark green and deep yellow vegetable. For iron: Baked potato with skin, 2 tablespoons wheat germ.

Those foods add up to 1500 calories. To lose healthfully and then maintain normal weight, you need an additional 800 or 900 calories. To gain, at least 1500 more calories are required. You may use those calories, whichever your goal, for any food your heart desires. But never an overload of sweets.

TF model airplane strip built

Ground control

BOB GILLESPIE, president of the Magic Valley Aeromodelers, gazes aloft as he puts his radio-controlled model plane through an intricate series of maneuvers.

TWIN FALLS — A unique landing strip for radio-controlled model aircraft is being carved out of the desert south of Twin Falls.

Members of the Magic Valley Aeromodelers, a group of "21 or 22" devotees of the art of flying radio-controlled planes, have leased 40 acres from the Bureau of Land Management to construct a complete landing strip, taxiways and grasslands for competitive action between aircraft clubs.

Robert Gillespie, president of the Aeromodelers, said Clawson Construction Co. of Twin Falls has donated a grader and an operator, donated his time to blade out a landing strip from the sagebrush-covered land several miles south of the city, and the city street department donated a water wagon to control dust.

The Aeromodelers' "terminal" will be located nearly two miles west of the extension of Blue Lakes Boulevard South. County road crews will improve a narrow road now leading to the site, Gillespie said.

Competition among model-airplane buffs is serious, bringing fliers long distances to test their skills against each other. The Magic Valley group captured four victories in six events, for instance, in a Boise contest three weeks ago, Gillespie said.

The group plans to enter the "Spokane International" contest at Spokane, Wash., in June, competing against ground-bound pilots from several states and possibly several countries.

Flying model airplanes with wingspreads ranging from five feet up to 10 feet by radio control is an intricate business, requiring all the skills of a pilot, Gillespie said.

The introduction of nearly indestructible transistors and miniaturized construction of radio sets has virtually revolutionized the art of radio-controlled flying. Planes and their controls are far more reliable and easy to handle.

The "pilot" uses a hand-held, battery-powered transmitter containing controls for the plane's rudder, ailerons and throttle, linked to the plane via an antenna to incredibly tiny servomotors which respond to the slightest pressure on the controls.

The controller must take wind, speed and the effect of all controls on the plane into effect when flying the plane — which can soar hundreds of feet in the air and scoot thousands of feet away.

"The radio will control the plane even farther than we can see, so we have to be careful to keep it in sight," Gillespie said.

A gust of wind on a six-pound plane can throw it completely out of control, and a carefully timed maneuver can turn into disaster if the controller isn't on top of things every second.

Gillespie is a highly skilled "aeromodeler," as anyone watching his plane swoop, roll and dive can tell. With the slightest flip of a finger on the sensitive controls, he throws his aircraft into a perfect barrel roll hundreds of feet in the air, then turns it into an intricate roll-twist-dive that only the most expert pilot can do in a "real" plane.

"You really have to be careful in this business, being on the ground," another fan, Robert Adamson, said. Where a pilot in the air has the feel of his plane and of the effect of air currents, a controller on the ground can tell what the currents and winds are at his plane's altitude only by what it is doing at any moment.

A smooth landing can turn into trouble, Adamson said, as he found out first-hand

Saturday morning. He was bringing his plane in for a smooth landing when a strong gust of wind tipped it nose down into the dirt.

The modelers have developed a number of devices to help service their planes, the principal one being a "bench" which cradles the aircraft at waist level for convenient servicing. The bench includes a "built-in" fuel pump, which pumps model airplane fuel into the craft. It has a holder for spare parts, including propellers, and the radio transmitter when moving from place to place.

All in all, according to Gillespie, radio-controlled model plane flying is a fascinating, growing field, attracting increasing numbers of fans. One of the more intricate skills involves flying a huge glider, without engine, with a 10-foot wingspread.

The glider is launched when air currents are proper. With the right "thermals," or rising air currents, the glider can be flown higher and farther, with the help of radio-controlled lifting surfaces.

"With the proper thermals, we can keep this glider aloft for hours on end," Gillespie said.

TF rehab unit to continue

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department of Health said a professional counselor, based in Boise, will develop a "working relationship" with both the Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center, Inc., and the Twin Falls unit.

Headquartered at the Community Institute for Human Resources, Boise, the counselor will work with an assistant at Mountain Home, preferably a former serviceman, and another at Horseshoe Bend, northwest of Boise.

The Horseshoe Bend assistant should be "conversant" with the lumbering industry, in order to work with people in that area. In the eight-county Magic Valley area, the new program will be implemented with the help of a professional in Twin Falls, working with assistants in the Hailey-Ketchum and Burley-Rupert areas, the latter to be of Spanish-American descent.

In Twin Falls, the Magic Valley Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center, formerly the "Twelfth-Step House," currently funded in part with $12,000 in federal funds, will "probably" continue to operate with little change, though few details of the state program have been received locally, according to David Richardson, formerly on the board of assistant secretary of transportation for environment and urban systems, will be guest speaker at the Jerome Chamber of Commerce annual dinner Thursday.

Iowa man wins Lander to Jackpot air race

JACKPOT, Nev. — Elmo Jamison, Dubuque, Iowa, recorded the best time in the weekend air race from Lander, Wyo., to Jackpot.

Flying a Piper Comanche, Jamison made the 305-mile flight in one hour, 33 minutes. The aircraft was in the single-engine four-place class for the third annual race.

A plane piloted by Gary Davis, Denver, Colo., which was entered in the race, crashed shortly after take-off at Lander Saturday. The pilot died about two hours after the crash, authorities said.

Bob Graves, Loveland, Colo., passenger in the plane, who suffered three fractured ribs, scalp lacerations and bruises, walked 15 miles to a ranch to report the location of the plane. Randy Harmon, Longmont, Colo., also a passenger, who broke a leg in two places and received scalp lacerations, remained at the site of the crash until help arrived.

In the two-place single-engine category, George Christenson, Riverton, Wyo., won in a Piper Super Cub. Joe Waterbury, Denver, Colo., placed second in a Cessna 150, and William Sharp, Grants Pass, Ore., flying a Cessna 150, was third.

Winner of the six place single engine category was Wilkinsons, Lander, Wyo., flying a Piper Cherokee 300. Don Locks, Casper, Wyo., was second in a Beechcraft Bonanza.

Bayless Harris, Seattle, Wash., won the twin-engine category in a Piper Apache. Fritz Seranton, Powell, Wyo., was second in a Piper Twin Comanche, and Don Birks, Lander, Wyo., flying a Piper Twin Comanche was third. Over 100 people participated

Race group has Burley meeting

BURLEY — The Idaho Horse Racing Sponsoring Association held a business meeting Saturday at Ponderosa Inn.

John Sterle, Jerome, president of the association, conducted the session. The main topic of business was hiring of personnel for the pari-mutuel horse racing on the fair circuit. The association hired Jerry Poolittle, Phoenix, Ariz., as pari-mutuel manager.

Other positions include racing secretary, paddock judge, photo finish operator and video or sound. Persons hired will be announced as soon as they confirm the job offers.

A goal of the association is for better horse racing, placing more responsible people on local tracks for all tracks to do the same thing the same way, Sterle said.

Wendell blaze

WENDELL — The Wendell Volunteer Fire Department spent about 30 minutes Sunday afternoon extinguishing a fire in the bed of a Knutson and Sons garbage truck.

Fire Chief George Wahler said today the truck was loaded with paper and other combustible material. He said the fire was started by children playing with matches. About $100 damage resulted to the truck sideboards, he said.

Fire Commissioner Dale Bitterli, in the absence of fire department officials, supervised the firemen answering the call which was received at 12:30 p.m.

Heyburn woman in fair condition

RUPERT — Mrs. Mildred King, Heyburn, was listed in good condition today at Minidoka Memorial Hospital following a two-car train collision near Rupert Friday.

Her daughter, Janice, who was also hospitalized, was released Saturday afternoon. The accident occurred on a county road south of Rupert when the vehicle driven by Mrs. King was struck by a Union Pacific train. The King vehicle spun around and collided with a car driven by John Bloech, Heyburn, who had stopped at the railroad crossing.

A thought for today: American writer Isaac Goldberg said, "diplomacy is to do and say the nastiest thing in the nicest way."

Formation of an advisory board, purpose of the council and programs for senior citizens in the Kimberly area will be discussed. Tim Bird and E. Wimmer of the Idaho Office on Aging, will lead discussions and answer questions.

No estimate yet in Ketchum fire

KETCHUM — No damage estimate has been set for a fire late Saturday which destroyed a mobile home four miles west of Ketchum on Warm Springs Road.

According to a Blaine County sheriff's deputy, the owner of the 10 by 16 foot trailer, Mitzie Gross, was not at home at the time of the blaze. A passerby reported the fire about 11:45 p.m. and one Ketchum fire truck responded, the deputy said.

The trailer and the contents were destroyed, the officer said. Mop-up operations continued until about 11 a.m. A flare-up occurred about 2:30 a.m.

The deputy said the fire probably started in the turn area of the trailer. The owner was notified Saturday evening.

Valley health plan meet set

TWIN FALLS — Individuals and agencies concerned with health matters in the Magic Valley area will attend a comprehensive health planning session here Wednesday.

Wayne Annis, administrator of the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital, said the meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Room 116 of the Shields Building, College of Southern Idaho.

Annis said eight counties will be represented in the meeting, designed to develop a comprehensive health planning organization for this area to work with special medical problems and needs. Smaller areas, where medical facilities and services are limited would especially benefit from an area wide plan, he said.

Counties involved are Twin Falls, Minidoka, Cassia, Lincoln, Jerome, Gooding, Blaine and Camas.

Agencies and individuals invited to attend include CSH representatives, county commissioners from all counties, South Central District

Board of Health members, staff members of the district health department, hospital administrators from all hospitals in the area, nursing home administration, regional medical program representatives, state comprehensive health planning representatives of this area, Mountain States Regional Medical Planning group and all interested individuals.

Blaine Durrant, executive director, Southeastern Idaho Center for Health Resources, Pocatello, will also attend. He said the Magic Valley area is capable of forming a health planning agency within a short time and the purposes and functions of such an agency will be discussed in the Wednesday night meeting. Some cities and counties in the area are already working toward comprehensive health plans.

Need for a coordinated area wide agency is evident to avoid fragmentation and duplication of services and efforts.

Officers said the vehicle was demolished. Two passengers in the vehicle with Kaserman were uninjured.

Kaserman was treated for minor injuries at the Sun Valley Hospital and released. He was released on $250 bond.

That's the advice of Wayne Hollenbeck, chairman of the Minidoka County commission, who warned Saturday that new state laws prohibiting dumping of dead animals is creating a problem in many parts of the county.

Dumping animals on county land is a misdemeanor under state law. Violators will be taken into court when detected, Hollenbeck said, and can be liable for a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $300 fine.

Farmers have only two alternatives when a large animal dies, Hollenbeck said — either bury the beast themselves or have the carcass hauled off by a rendering plant.

The firm will not, however, pick up animals which have been dead more than 24 hours, according to a company representative.

Pasture bound

COMMON SIGHT these spring days is the ebb and flow of migrating flocks of sheep, heading toward summer range. This herd, nearing the village of Minidoka northeast of Rupert, took a direct route — straight up State Highway 24. Several thousand sheep were trailed into the north country last week in three large bands, accompanied by the usual herder's wagon and sheepdogs.

National Gem spud boycott fruit of labor law fields

(Editors: This is the seventh in a series examining what action the legislature took — or did not take — in the second regular session of the 41st Idaho Legislature. Today: Agriculture.)

BY LINDY HIGH

BOISE (UPI) — The 1972 legislature studied a variety of agricultural labor acts and in the end approved one which has led to a United Farm Worker threat of a nationwide boycott of the Idaho potato.

But the road to the bill outlining the collective bargaining procedures for farm workers was rocky. The lawmakers first pushed through a bill identical to one approved in 1971 — changing it only to make it a permanent act rather than a one-year-only statute. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus promptly vetoed it and threatened a special session unless it was replaced.

Andrus later named a special committee which drafted the final bill passed by both houses with even floor sponsors agreeing they were not completely satisfied with final results.

The 1972 legislature named interim committees to study both the farm labor problem and the problem of marketing the Idaho potato.

The potato marketing committee finally recommended an increased assessment on the potato crops which was to have risen from the present 2½ cents to five cents per hundredweight by 1975. The bill was first killed in the Senate after some legislators objected to the stringent referendum proceedings, then amended to change the referendum and finally passed by the Senate.

When the legislature adjourned, however, the advertising tax bill remained in the house agriculture committee without house action.

Sen. Joe Allen, R-American Falls, proposed another solution to the low potato prices: a supply management system which would have authorized purchase of the Idaho spuds during the low price years to ward off a surplus market.

That bill, too, failed in the Senate but was reconsidered and sent back to committee for further study. But it remained in the committee's hands when the lawmakers went home.

On the final day of the session, however, lawmakers approved without a dissenting vote in either house a bill increasing the potato tax from 2½ cents to 3½ cents, subject to a referendum, with the estimated $5,000 return to be used either for advertising or for legal fees to fight the threatened boycott.

Another proposed referendum, this one to decide whether the Idaho Wheat Commission should be continued, was introduced but remained in the Agricultural Affairs Committee in the Senate for the entire session.

Both houses approved and the governor has signed a new law providing for licensing and regulation of sprayers and dusters. The governor has also signed a measure exempting agricultural sprayers and dusters from the workmen's compensation coverage.

But the House State Affairs Committee held a Senate-approved bill which would have required farm employers to cover their agricultural workers under workmen's compensation.

Finally, both houses approved and the governor has signed a new statute authorizing the commissioner of agriculture to ensure grading and marketing standards are met for Idaho potatoes sold within the state. Estimated cost of enforcing the act is $15,000.

Farm bargaining laws seen hurting consumer

BY BERNARD BRENNER

UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former member of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers charges that laws giving farmers more bargaining power could decrease competition among processors and hurt consumers.

The blast from Hendrik S. Houthakker, now a Harvard economics professor, was aimed mainly at pending bills including one which would require processors to bargain in good faith with farmer associations.

But Houthakker, in a recent speech to a grain and feed dealers group, broadened his target to include existing federal marketing order programs for milk, fruits and vegetables.

If any action is needed to reduce "excessive" power of processors in dealing with farmers, Houthakker argued, the answer clearly is to increase competition among handlers, not to compound the problem by decreasing competition among producers.

"The great danger of the farmer bargaining bills is that they would give control over supply to organizations that have no responsibility to the public, only to their members," the economist added.

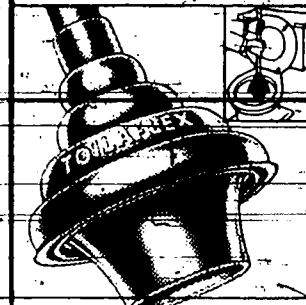

Backers of farmer bargaining bills, led by the American Farm Bureau Federation, argue such legislation is needed to give farmers an effective voice in setting the prices of their products. Under existing law, processors are forbidden to discriminate against farmers on grounds of membership in a bargaining group, but cannot be dealers group, compelled to negotiate with an association.

Houthakker, however, contends existing federal marketing order programs demonstrate what could happen on a wider scale if powerful bargaining associations control supplies of farm products.

All too often, the philosophy behind these marketing orders appears to be that the only role of consumers is to put up and shut up, Houthakker said.

Archer wins playoff-in Greensboro tournament

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)—Big George Archer defeated Tommy Aaron on the second hole of a sudden death playoff Sunday to win the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Archer, at 6 feet 6 the tallest player on the pro tour, and Aaron finished the regulation 72 holes tied at 12-under-par 272.

Arnold Palmer, who triple bogeyed the par 3, 16th hole, was grouped at 273, a stroke off the pace, with J. G. Sneed, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Dave Stockton.

Three strokes back of the leaders were Australian Bruce Crampton, who posted a final round 73 after leading through the second and third rounds, and a Jacksonville Open winner Tony Jacklin.

Lee Trevino had a one-under-70-for-the day, and wound up in a group at 280.

Archer, a former ranchhand at Gilroy, Calif., captured the Los Angeles Open by beating Aaron and Dave Hill in an 18-hole playoff earlier this year.

He had an unimpressive 70 in the opening round, added a 68 in Saturday's rain-delayed second round and then put together 66-68 rounds over the final 36 holes Sunday.

He collected five birdies, two on 40-foot putts, against only two bogeys in the afternoon round in chilly, 40-degree weather at the Sedgefield Country Club course.

Aaron had rounds of 67, 69 and 71, and adding a 67 Saturday.

During the afternoon round, the affable Georgian had three bogeys but five birdies and an eagle on the par 5, 14th hole when he placed a four-iron shot within four feet of the cup and made his putt.

Palmer went 14-under with back-to-back birdies on the back nine, but his two-stroke margin was short-lived.

He hit into a creek that runs across the 16th hole, blasted out of the water and behind a bunker, landing in the trap and then two-putting to post a one-under-70 for the day.

The treacherous hole was the same one that proved Aaron's undoing in the playoff.

He hit his tee shot into the creek, took a penalty and was unable to sink his shot for par.

"I hit the green and he hit the water and that's the story," said Archer, who pocketed $40,000 for his second tour victory of the season.

Crampton had a three-stroke lead going into the double round, which was required to finish the 35-year-old tournament, delayed a day by rain Friday.

Nicklaus skipped Greensboro to prepare for next week's Masters.

Mets manager Gil Hodges dies of heart attack in Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Gil Hodges, one of the popular Brooklyn Dodger stars of the 1950's and current manager of the New York Mets, died Sunday of a heart attack just two days before his 48th birthday.

The soft-spoken native of Princeton, Ind., collapsed in front of his hotel after returning from a round of golf with friends and was rushed to Good Samaritan Hospital at 5:25 p.m. est. He was pronounced dead at 5:45.

Hodges is survived by his wife, Joan; three daughters, Barbara, Irene and Cindy; and a son, Gil Jr.

The tragic death of the Mets manager came just one day after the historic strike by the major league players which had caused all the teams to shut down their spring training facilities. Hodges had left the Mets' camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., Saturday and had stopped off at West Palm Beach for a day of golf before heading for his New York home.

It was the second heart attack suffered by Hodges in the last four years. In September of 1968 he collapsed during a game with the Braves at Atlanta and spent several months over the winter in convalescence. His doctor had reportedly been pleased with his physical progress over the last four years.

Hodges' death also comes less than a week after former Dodger teammate Roy Campanella suffered an embolism. Campanella is still in serious condition in a New York hospital with a blood clot on the lung.

"It's hard to imagine," said another ex-teammate, Hall of Famer Jackie Robinson. "First Campy, now this. It makes you kind of think and wonder. It came as such a shock. He seemed on the upgrade after suffering his first heart attack."

GIL HODGES, manager of the New York Mets, collapsed and died Sunday of an apparent heart attack after finishing a round of golf with friends.

He spent all but two of those years with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers and was the All-Star first baseman on six occasions. His powerful bat and golden glove helped the Dodgers win seven pennants and two world championships. Hodges established a National League record of 14 grand slam home runs during his career and he equaled the all-time major league record of four home runs in a game on Aug. 31, 1956. In seven consecutive seasons, from 1949 through 1955, he drove in over 100 runs and he hit 30 or more homers in six of eight consecutive While Hodges' general dislike for conversation often rankled newsmen, he was thought of highly by his former teammates, and managers and opponents.

"It was guys like Hodges, (Pee Wee) Reese, Roy Campanella who made it easy for me by helping a rookie manager," said Dodger manager Walter Alston, who first took over as manager of the Brooklyn club in 1954. "Gil was that type of man. He never gave anyone any trouble; he was a great man on the field and off of it."

New York topples Baltimore

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walt Frazier scored 30 points, Dave DeBusschere added 29 and New York effectively clogged the middle lane against Archie Clark Sunday night as the Knicks defeated the Baltimore Bullets, 110-88, to even their opening round NBA playoff series at one game apiece.

In addition to their torrid shooting, DeBusschere and Frazier outbounded the entire Baltimore team in the first half as they combined for 18 caroms to only 14 for the Bullets.

Clark, who scored 38 points against New York Friday night, as he penetrated the New York defense at WTL, was held to 18 points. The Bullets guard hit on only six field goal attempts compared to 15 in the opener.

New York coach Red Holzman used a psychological gambit as he started Earl Monroe. The ex-Bullets star was roundly booed in Baltimore in the opener Friday night and the resounding cheer he received at Madison Square Garden was a tremendous lift to Monroe.

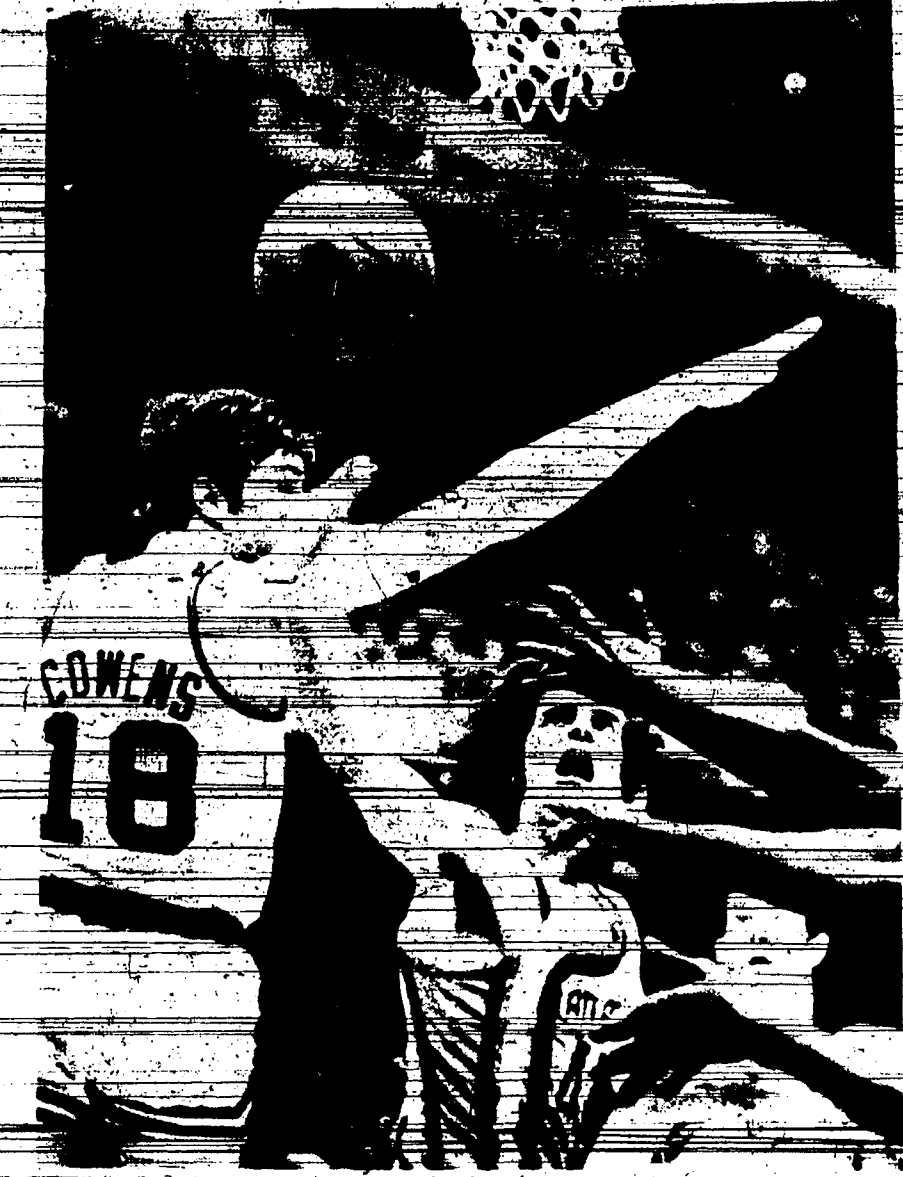

Monroe led a six-point spurt early in the first period that gave New York a 9-3 lead and the Bullets could never recover. Holzman, obviously nettled by Clark's middle lane driving in the first game, had the Knicks double team the Baltimore star and he was only held to six points in the first half.

Frazier, who scored 31 points in the series opener, continued to riddle the Baltimore defense with a 91-point effort in the first half, including 12 in the opening quarter when New York grabbed a 26-17 lead.

DeBusschere, who hit eight of nine baskets in the second half, and Frazier combined for 10 points in the opening minutes of the second period as New York went on a 16-3 surge to take their biggest lead of the game at 77 points, 47-30. The Knicks held a 56-38 margin at halftime.

Baseball strike continuing with no signs of progress

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the second straight day there was "no progress" made between negotiators Marvin Miller and John Gaherin Sunday as the major league players baseball strike continued with little hope that a settlement could be reached by opening day Wednesday.

Miller, Executive Director of the Players Association, and Gaherin, chief counsel for the club owners, met for an hour and a half at Gaherin's office in midtown New York, but the issues at hand remained at a status quo. The two parties said they would meet again Monday at 11 a.m. EST.

"There's been no progress," said Gaherin. "The separation between the two parties hasn't narrowed although we spent today trying to narrow it. The main issues remain the same."

The major league players, who voted by a 47-0 margin on Friday to go on strike, are seeking $850,000 for their pension benefits while the owners have stated they would only give $400,000.

The strike has shut down all spring training operations and forced cancellation of all exhibition games since Saturday.

West leads Lakers over Chicago Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI)—Jerry West, firing 31 points with nine assists, led the Los Angeles Lakers to a 108-101 win over the Chicago Bulls in a nationally televised National Basketball Association playoff game Sunday afternoon.

It was the third straight win for the Lakers, champions of the NBA's Pacific Division, in their best of seven semifinal playoff series against Chicago, runnersup in the Midwest Division, and the decision gave Los Angeles a chance to sweep the series in four straight with another victory in the next game on the Bulls' floor Tuesday night.

The Lakers' outshot from the floor by the Bulls, cashed in on the free throw line, connecting on 26 of 31 gift attempts during the game including 18 straight leading to the finish. The Lakers didn't miss from the free throw line in the last half. The Bulls, who hit 43 field goals, compared to 40 for the Lakers, made 15 of 22 free throw attempts. Yet they came from behind in the third period to tie the score at 68-68 and thereafter kept coming back to keep the Laker lead ranging from one to three points most of the way. But each time Chicago came within a point, West seemed to hit from long range to take the pressure off the Lakers again. Four of the Lakers' five starters scored in double figures as Gail Goodrich, who netted 11 of 12 free throw attempts, counted 23. Jim McMillian 19 and Walt Chamberlain 16.

The Bulls' top scorer was guard Norm Van Lier with 22 while four other Bulls also were in double figures—Bob Weiss with 16, Bob Love with 15, Jerry Sloan 14 and Clifford Ray 12.

The Bulls were handicapped because center Tom Boerwinkle, who usually alternates with Ray, was out with an injured knee and both Chet Walker and Love were handicapped by leg injuries. At times the Bulls played without a center in order to give Ray a little rest. The Lakers hit 61.9 per cent of their field goal attempts compared to 41 per cent for the Bulls, but Ray outbounded Chamberlain 20-14 and the Bulls got off the boards compared to 42 for Los Angeles.

Gaherin said it was unfortunate that the issue had reached a stage where the players felt a strike was necessary.

"The players simply misunderstand the situation," said Gaherin, "and the positions of the clubs have not been clearly stated in reporting. The position we're taking is designed to preserve benefits the players now have. Not a single major league player will be deprived of a benefit in 1972 that he had in 1971."

Considering the fact that we're willing to subject the whole pension system to a close examination, why should there be a strike? I don't know," Gaherin said that he was in close contact with both league presidents—Joe Cronin of the American and Chub Feeney of the National—but that neither was present at his informal meeting with Miller.

Cronin and Feeney are expected to be present at Monday's meeting while Miller will probably attend with counsel and some player representatives.

Most spring training camps were deserted Sunday as players made their way home from Florida and Arizona. The Kansas City Royals—24 of the 28 roster members—did work out at a junior college field in Fort Myers, Fla., and said they would do so again on Monday. But the majority of the players have packed their bags and left, awaiting a decision that would get them back into uniform.

Celtics overpower Atlanta

BOSTON (UPI)—John Havlicek and Jo Jo White continued for 60 points Sunday to guide the Boston Celtics to a 136-113 triumph over the Atlanta Hawks and a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

White collected for 15 points as the Celtics took a 33-27 first period lead and Havlicek added 13 markers during a 41 point second quarter spree that broke open the game. Boston led 74-53 at the half and put down a pair of second half rallies for the win.

Walt Bellamy and Pete Maravich sparked a third period rally for the visitors as the Celtics went cold in their shooting. They teamed for 17 points as the Hawks cut the lead to 86-78.

However, Havlicek scored three baskets, White clipped in a basket and a free throw and Artie Williams tossed in a pair of foul shots to put Boston way out front to stay.

In the fourth quarter Maravich scored nine more points and Lou Hudson picked three shots to cut Boston's lead to 108-100 before Williams and Havlicek scored 10 points to insure the victory.

Maravich, showing no effects from the mononucleosis that sidelined him for more than a month during the last part of the season, led all scorers with 37 points.

Wilkins will quit as coach

SEATTLE (UPI)—Seattle's personalities player-coach Lenny Wilkins said Sunday he had decided to give up the coaching job and continue as a player with the National Basketball Association team.

"I feel that I can continue to make a valuable contribution to the Seattle SuperSonics as a player next season and in the future," Wilkins said. "And when the time comes for me to retire as a player, I hope to resume my coaching career."

Wilkins had served as player-coach of the Sonics for the past three years. The team had its finest year in the NBA this past season, dropping out of playoff contention only at the tail end of the season after several key men were lost through injuries.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 4, 1972

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early a.m. can bring some surprise benefit. After that time, be wary and refuse to speak your mind to another for much offense could be taken which could cause an otherwise unnecessary separation. Be kind and maintain your cool and let others see you are truly considerate of them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy and finish duties on hand instead of going off on some tangent that could really get you messed up. You need to control your temper in the evening, though, since you might be tired then. Rest on your laurels.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you do not get busy and handle responsibilities wisely now, you can certainly regret it later on. A more diplomatic approach with mate is required in p.m. Strive for more harmony instead of adding fuel to the fire, as it were.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find out where you differ with associates and then reach a fine compromise for best results in the future. Handle any necessary public work wisely, though it may be somewhat demanding. Keep cool, controlled.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) With all that work ahead of you, it is best you put aside all little chores in the outside world that are not necessary and get it done. Plan it well so you do not overtax yourself. Think of your health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although having fun is on your mind, you would be wiser to get caught up on all of your obligations and put your house in better order. Carry through with what you know how to do best. Anything new could be difficult right now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you try to be forceful at home, you find this could bring arguments that are best avoided. Show you have pleasant manners and poise. Get right results. Get rid of that point of tension quietly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You have much specialized work to perform so be sure you do not permit anyone to waste your time or take other risks that could cause you to ruin it, make big mistakes. On over letters you may write for possible glaring errors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You waver between being extravagant and overly stingy today, try to find the happy medium instead. Do not trust the judgment of an adviser now who is not in his or her usual good condition. Await a better time to confer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Learn what others expect of you through gentle prodding instead of making rude remarks, then carry through intelligently. A few moments of your time for one who grieves is well spent. Be wise — save your money — you don't need that expensive item.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have small annoyances, but blowing them up out of proportion is foolhardy — take in your stride and solve easily and quickly. One you love is in the doldrums, so do your utmost to dispel gloom, but not at your own expense. Be objective.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Look out for that alcoholic or poor driver when on the road and keep above such foolishness yourself in order to save the most valuable thing you possess — your life. Silence is still golden, particularly with mate in p.m. Words are rare pearls — use them sparingly.

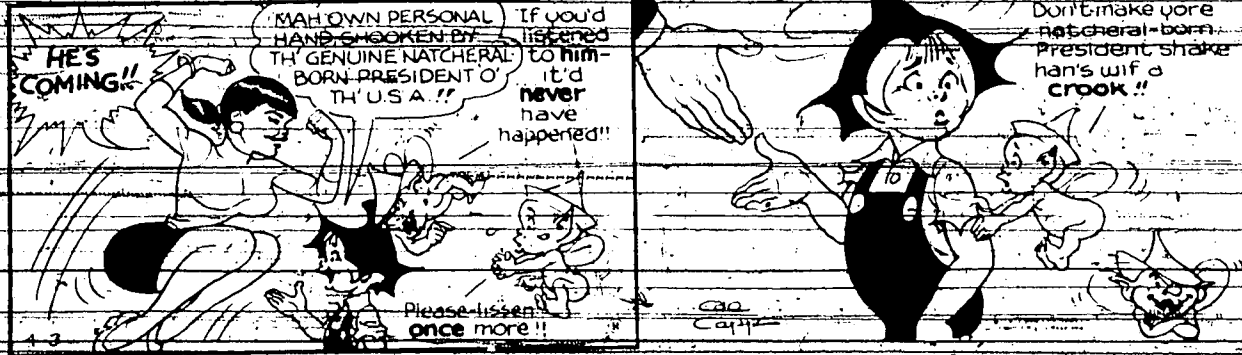

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have both the stamina and the willingness to tackle some difficult problem in the world of activity, so solve it admirably. Why ruin your credit because you have a foolish moment this day? Laugh when you feel like spending extravagantly and you won't.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be one of those young people who will literally be born with a feeling of divine discontent and for that reason can easily become a boon to humanity, since his or her novel ideas can lift others from a life of despair to the heights of satisfactory expression. Religious training is important early as your child may become another drag of society otherwise. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Male Readers Like Widows

"Only second-hand goods that sell at first-class prices are rich widows."

Benjamin Franklin

In that fiction known as the novel, which sort of heroine is most apt to appeal to the gentleman reader? Researchers did a study on this query, too. The rich and beautiful widow whose husband was a heel, they claim. Clearly, the masculine reader sees himself as the renewer of this lady's faith in man. And as the manager of her money, I gather. Second most appealing heroine is said to be the pretty country girl who wants to learn. BILL RUSSELL says John Havlicek is the best basketball player he's ever worked with. And Russell has worked with quite a many, no.

SOMEDAY, mark me, that Bing Crosby drama "Dr. Cook's Garden" will wind up anthologized among the TV classics. AM ASKED to name the most attractive women on television these days. Without a doubt, Coke's blue-eyed country girl IF YOU CAN'T pick out the three mountain ranges in this country with colors as their names, your old geography teacher would be ashamed of you. Orange Mountains of New Hampshire, Green Mountains of Vermont, and—sing it, Sam!—The Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia.

SMELL

How keen your sense of smell is depends to some degree on what you've had to eat. And just about any old boy in the medical dodge, familiar with your machinery, can tell you how your nose is doing at a given moment by sampling your blood sugar.

Q. "I'M 29. Statistically, how many working years do I have left?"

A. Just 36. And taxes, regret to report, will get all you make in 30 of them.

WHY DO skaters in roller rinks all go counterclockwise? Because most favor their right, I'm told. A teacher of skaters says it's exceedingly difficult to train a left-handed, left-footed, left-eyed child to skate counterclockwise.

COWBOYS

Every third cowboy in the Old West — after the Civil War — at any rate — was a black man. That's the claim of the Playboy Magazine researchers.

IF ALL the people who got married in Las Vegas in a single year met in one spot, they'd make a town somewhat more sizable than Las Vegas itself.

AN UNEMPLOYED customer reports bitterly he and numerous complaints now out of work have no place to turn for help except to St. Ferdinand, the patron saint of engineers.

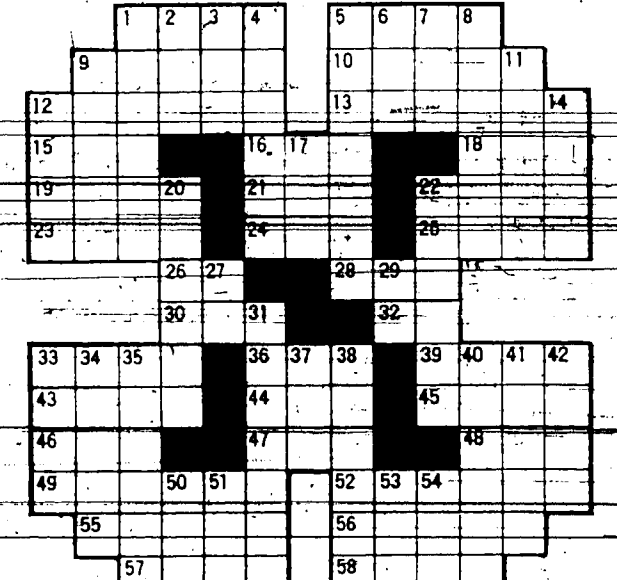

IT HAS BEEN just 54 years since a wife in the Soviet Union could divorce her husband simply by mailing the fellow a "Dear Ivan" postcard.

By STEVE GERSTEL
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Valerie Kushner has not seen her husband for five years. He is an Army major, a prisoner of the National Liberation Front, somewhere in Vietnam. To her, the 1972 presidential election is a clearcut issue.

"When I vote," she says in a voice carrying only the hint of a southern drawl, "I am voting with my husband's life."

To Virginia Warner, whose son James has languished in a North Vietnam POW compound since 1967, the decision also is easy.

"If the present administration goes back in, forget the prisoners," the tall, gray-haired mother said with simple conviction.

Mrs. Kushner, Mrs. Warner, and Mrs. Richard Walsh, whose husband has been missing in action after being shot down over Laos in 1965, flanked Sen. George S. McGovern Tuesday at a news conference which marked the ninth anniversary of the first American POW in Vietnam.

To them, and possibly to many more wives and mothers of Americans either prisoners or missing in action, McGovern and a McGovern presidency present the best chance of finally getting their sons and husbands home.

They place their faith in the South Dakota senator, in his promise to bring the troops home 90 days after he is inaugurated, and in his unflinching belief that once he completes the withdrawal, North Vietnam will release the prisoners.

"I feel a genuine kinship to these women," McGovern says. "I was a bomber pilot in World War II."

"If I had been captured as a bomber pilot, it would never have occurred to me that I would have been released before the war was over."

Mrs. Kushner, a mother of two, said that in 1968 she had great hopes that President Nixon would carry out his promise to end the war.

This year, she and two other women, Shirley Brown and Jean McDaniels of Greensboro, N.C., wrote Nixon in December that "we see about us the remnants of broken promises and unfulfilled commitments."

"The pledges of your administration, like ornaments on a Christmas tree, have shown themselves to be hollow and impermanent," they wrote.

There was no answer from the White House. A following letter from Mrs. Kushner to Brig. Gen. James D. Hughes, military assistant to the president, elicited a reply which said "frankly, I saw no purpose in replying to your December letter to the President since his policies with regard to the prisoners and missing have been made public and you and the others who wrote the letter obviously do not agree with them."

So Mrs. Kushner and Mrs. Warner, who admits "I'm getting too old to be traveling around like this," have followed McGovern from New Hampshire to Florida to Wisconsin to plead his cause.

Mrs. Kushner dreads another Christmas without her husband.

TORCH confab set for Rupert

RUPERT — A district TORCH convention is scheduled for Saturday, April 8, at the former Rupert VFW Armory, according to Connie Moncur, advisor for the East Minico group.

The TORCH organization is composed of adults and young people working with handicapped children, carrying the name of Teens Organization for Retarded Children. TORCH groups throughout the Magic Valley sponsor the annual Special Olympics for the handicapped and seek other ways to interest the handicapped child in his environment.

Saturday's conference will include a seminar on working with the young victims of various handicaps, Miss Moncur said.

The featured speaker will be Mrs. McNevin, the social worker with the Mini-Cassia Child Development Center.

Stanley may get service

STANLEY — The community of Stanley anticipates emergency medical services will be available by June of this year if a current fund-raising campaign is successful.

The Stanley Basin area population from June to Mid-October is swelled by numerous loggers, summer residents, tourists and hunters, while the permanent population is only 47. The nearest hospital and physicians are 81 miles away, over an 8,700 foot summit, from 1 1/2 to two hours driving time.

Gary Steinbach, project director, Idaho Hospital Association, reported that through the consolidated efforts of Stanley and a special project funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation for IHA, a pilot project to provide emergency medical services is currently being developed.

Mrs. Marie Osborn, a registered nurse from Boise, who is a summer and fall resident of Stanley, will provide the emergency services. She has received extensive training over the last five months in emergency and trauma situations at St. Luke's Hospital, Boise, and Harborview Hospital, Seattle.

Two physicians in Halley, Doctors Alden Packer and Robert Gwinner, will provide back-up consultative services by telephone and standing orders concerning anticipated situations.

The fund raising campaign is to provide a facility from which to base the project, and an ambulance. In addition, Stanley is developing a volunteer ambulance service with a 30-hour ambulance attendant's course, through funds made available by the Idaho Department of Health, Emergency Medical Services Division.

Anyone interested in assisting the citizens of Stanley with this project are encouraged to make tax-deductible gifts payable to the Stanley-Stimmon River Emergency Medical Clinic. Gifts may be mailed to Marvin Larson, Stanley.

Hearings scheduled on blast

PINEDALE, Wyo. (UPI) — A public hearing is slated April 21 in Pinedale on the ramifications of the proposed "Project Wagon Wheel" nuclear blast scheduled for 1973.

A public meeting earlier this month in Big Piney, attracted more than 800 persons concerned over the project. Purpose of the experiment is to determine if nuclear explosives can free natural gas trapped in rock deep underground.

Among speakers scheduled to appear at the April 21 meeting are Dr. Robert Pendleton, University of Utah radiation ecologist, and hydrologist Dr. Luna Leopold.

The project — sponsored by El Paso Natural Gas Co. and the Atomic Energy Commission — would detonate five nuclear devices in sequence underground in southeastern Wyoming near Pinedale and Big Piney. Each device would be equivalent to 100,000 tons of TNT.

Both Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway and Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., have asked the AEC to hold hearings in Pinedale so the project would be fully understood.

The U.S. explained they believed people of the area involved should be told of the environmental impact and what alternatives, if any, exist for obtaining the natural gas.

Home mortgage bars to women, older couples fall

NEW YORK (UPI)—Traditional barriers which made it difficult, if not impossible, for a woman alone or the over-40 couple to obtain a home mortgage are giving way.

John P. Farry, President of the United States Savings and Loan League, says: "Financing for home buyers nearing or at retirement age has become commonplace. And, while it still is not as easy for a woman to get a mortgage as it is for a man, the pendulum is swinging in that direction."

Savings associations are the nation's biggest mortgage lenders and the U.S. League, with nearly 5,000 member institutions, is the major trade association.

"It wasn't too long ago," Farry said, "that the rule of 65 prevailed. If you were 40 or over, your age, plus the term of the mortgage you were seeking, could not exceed the total of 65, the age at which people were expected to retire. But today many institutions are giving long-term mortgages to borrowers who already are 65 or older."

At the same time, he said, "the working woman or the divorcee or widow with her own financial resources has a far better chance of getting a mortgage today than she had even two or three years ago."

Changing economic factors, and changing attitudes are behind the liberalized lending trends.

Farry, who also is president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Albert Lea, Minn., said that while there are differences in lending patterns from one area to another and even among different institutions within the same area, over-all change is evident when it comes to the would-be borrower who falls outside the main category of under-40 couples.

The woman alone who would purchase a home, he said, has going for her today the changing attitude toward women in the work force. As more and more women work and move into positions of greater responsibility, it's becoming obvious their sex is no barrier to handling the obligations of a mortgage," Farry said.

"Contributing, too," are new birth control methods and changing attitudes toward family size, which mean unmarried young women are more likely to continue working if they marry later on. Women's liberation and consumer movements also are exerting influence on lenders.

"But probably the most important reason is development of the condominium, and along with it the planned unit development. This is the logical type of housing for a woman because it provides the benefits of home ownership without the hard work involved in maintaining a single-family dwelling."

The question now, Farry said, no longer revolves around a woman's ability to maintain a property. It becomes purely one of economics: Can she afford the home? Is her income sufficient and steady enough to make the payments?

The same criterion governs lending in the over-40 category. "More and more," Farry said, "the lender's only concern is whether the older borrower has an adequate ratio of retirement income to the debt he wants to carry—the same yardstick applied to borrowers in any other age bracket."

The older buyer may be expected to put up more than the minimum down payment on a home, and he may not be able to get the maximum 30-year term but if he can afford the home he wants to buy, the older borrower will be able to get a loan.

Behind this change, Farry said, are a number of factors. The growth of pension plans. Coupled with Social Security, they have led to greater stability in the incomes of many retirees.

The fast turnover in home ownership, with people moving more often, the average life of a loan is only seven years or so.

The development of "retirement villages," and the good lending experiences at many of these.

Condominiums and planned unit developments, which give older buyers a maintenance-free alternative to apartment living.

The growing use of private mortgage insurance, which reduces the lender's risk.

The entry into the secondary market for conventional loans by the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation. This gives associations a market in which they can sell their mortgages if they wish.

Lenders also have found, Farry said, that even if the head of the household dies, the widow often has the resources to keep up the mortgage. And even if both partners die, often an heir picks up the equity in the property.

It is seldom today, Farry said, that older borrowers are required to have a co-signer, usually a son, as was the practice formerly. "If a man makes a 25 per cent down payment, has plenty of life insurance and maintains a substantial savings account, the lender is unlikely to tell him his son must co-sign the note. In most cases, the father is in a lot better financial shape than the son anyhow."

Angela figures in drive

BERLIN (UPI)—Angela Davis has become the central figure of an East German campaign to promote anti-Americanism and combat the discontent of youth.

The campaign was organized when the East German Communist party became worried about grumbling among young people, who are showing signs of hostility to tight totalitarian controls and lack of freedom of expression.

Confined to young people in the United States and other western nations, East German youth listens to its elders, obeys the rules and speaks when spoken to.

But underneath the calm surface, young people are becoming restive. They are questioning the values of a Communist society and wonder why they may not travel to the West.

As a result, the ruling Communist party has ordered newspapers, radio and television to begin a campaign to "show the true picture of imperialism," with the emphasis on Angela Davis.

This has the double purpose of diverting attention from the shortcomings of life in East Berlin and painting a black picture of conditions in the western world.

Not a day goes by that the East-German press does not play up the case of Miss Davis, a militant black Communist currently on trial in California on murder and kidnap conspiracy charges in connection with a gun in 1970 that left a judge and other persons dead.

The headlines read "Racists Wish to Make Example of Angela," "Angela is a Symbol for Justice and Freedom," "Angela's Accusers Fear the Oppressed," and "Fair Trial for Angela Impossible."

Poems are dedicated to her, interviews with her are printed, rallies are held, collections taken, petitions signed, letters and cards sent.

No mention is made of accusations that she bought some of the guns used in the last attack.
